Qualifications

Award winning producer and director with a background in science, and a passion for storytelling. Experienced with multi-camera directing, live TV, writing for & directing hosts, sourcing stories, contributors, talent and locations, scouting, working with scientists and large institutions, securing access, scripting, shooting, post producing, storyboarding, writing graphics, official photography, BTS filming and photography, data wrangling, writing press releases, creating original online content, making puns.

Science Communication

From 2016 - 2017 I was Creative Events Producer for Guerilla Science. I led projects including a pop-up experimental dining event that garnered significant press coverage, and science stages at music festivals across the USA. I managed teams of up to 60 people and budgets of tens of thousands of dollars, as well as being the chief creative visionary. I also have experience in front of the camera and live audiences as a host.

Author

I am a published astrophysicist, and my first non-fiction book "50 Things To See In The Sky" will be released in June 2019 in the UK by Pavilion Books, and in the USA in the Fall by Princeton Architectural Press.
